☐ Read and identify……..

The key let us move quickly downwards, several lines at a time through our document.

This key is often used to return the user to the beginning of the line or the beginning of a document, depending on the program we are using.

The key moves the cursor to the end of the line, paragraph, page, screen, cell, or document depending on the program and where your cursor is currently positioned.

The key let us move quickly upwards, several lines at a time through our document.